

Instead of trying use the government to kill competition every time new technology comes along, the NAB might try responding to the market and offering the better product.